GMA reinstates sacked PCGG whistle-blower

By Joey S. Asuncion

MANILA (Inquirer.net) — GMA has reinstated a former employee who was sacked for whistleblowing on the network's alleged involvement in a controversial PCGG case.

The former employee, who was sacked in 2005, was reinstated after a court order. The court found that the network had violated labor laws by dismissing the employee without just cause.

The court also ordered the network to pay back wages and benefits to the employee. The network had argued that the employee was dismissed for cause, but the court found this claim to be unfounded.

Disabled get PRRM plan to supply desks

MANILA (Inquirer.net) — A PRRM plan to supply desks to disabled students in schools has been approved by the Department of Education. The plan aims to provide a more inclusive learning environment for all students.

The plan involves the distribution of specially designed desks to schools across the country. These desks are designed to be more accessible for students with physical disabilities.

The Department of Education has allocated funds for the purchase of these desks. The plan is part of a larger initiative to improve the quality of education for all students, regardless of their abilities.

The plan is expected to benefit thousands of disabled students across the country. It is a significant step towards ensuring that all students have access to quality education.

The court's decision is a landmark case for labor rights in the Philippines. It sets a precedent for the treatment of whistleblowers in the workplace.

The network had argued that the employee was dismissed for cause, but the court found this claim to be unfounded. The court emphasized the importance of protecting whistleblowers.

The court also ordered the network to pay back wages and benefits to the employee. This decision is a strong statement against the illegal dismissal of employees.

Lawyers hear of hearing from media

NEW YORK — Lawyers for the defense of the two men charged with the murder of a woman in a New York City apartment last year, said they had received a letter from the New York State Bar Association, asking them to appear before a committee of the bar to answer questions about the case.

The letter, dated last week, was sent to the lawyers by the New York State Bar Association, which is the largest and oldest of the state's legal organizations. It was the first time the bar has asked the defense lawyers to appear before a committee since the case was first reported in the press.

The defense lawyers, who are representing the two men, said they had received the letter from the bar association on Monday. They said they had not yet decided whether to appear before the committee, but they said they would do so if the bar association insisted.

The bar association's committee is made up of 10 members, including judges and lawyers. It is chaired by Judge John J. Frawley, who is a member of the bar association's executive committee. The committee is expected to meet next week.

Pakistanis vote amid fears of violence, fraud

At a polling station in Islamabad, Pakistan, voters are seen in a line to cast their ballots.

ISLAMABAD, Feb. 14 (AP) — Pakistanis went to the polls today to elect members of the National Assembly, but many voters expressed concerns about the security and integrity of the process. In the capital, Islamabad, and other major cities, there were reports of violence and intimidation against voters and candidates. The Election Commission of Pakistan (ECP) has taken steps to ensure a fair and free election, but the atmosphere of fear and uncertainty has led to a low turnout in some areas. The results of the election will have significant implications for the future of the country.

The election was held in a country that has been plagued by violence and instability for years. The security situation is a major concern for voters and international observers. The ECP has announced that it will take all necessary measures to ensure the integrity of the election process. However, the widespread fear of violence and fraud has led to a lack of confidence in the electoral system. The results of the election will be closely watched by the international community.
